Guide To Forex Market Trade

Foreign currency exchange is a world-wide trade of currencies on forex market. Stock market, bond market, commodity market and forex market belong to the biggest trading places in the world. All these markets cannot be compared to the capacity of forex. The daily turnover of forex market is trillions of dollars which is 50 times more than stock market and 15 times larger than bonds market.

Although the market was founded few decades ago, it is one of the most popular places of trade. Without any centralized exchange forex market managed to outdo the other trading places in terms of activity, volatility, liquidity and investment. Unlike any other trading market, forex is purely electronic and all the transactions are conducted online with the help of computer and internet. Basically, forex is the internal market for financial institutions, banks and big corporations all over the world. That is why, it is also called the Interbank market.

In order to trade on currency exchange market one has to get access to the interbank market. Mainly brokers have such access. Brokers or in other words special companies provide access to the market with the help of special online accounts. Nowadays there are more than 10,000 brokers. With appearance of broker companies individual traders got an opportunity to participate in currency exchange via online platforms that brokers provide. A specially developed platform allows trading various types of currencies.

Forex traders get income by selling and buying the currency. In other words it is called trading currency pairs. Practically, you buy one currency for the other one. Your task is to sell higher and to buy cheaper. You get income on price rises and drops.

Almost currencies of all countries are represented on forex market. It is better to become professional in one or two currency pairs. Typically, currencies of the most developed countries are the most widely traded.
