Nine Tips For Those Who Have Decided To Create Their Own Site

Tip # 1. Write down on paper the structure of the future site.

Before you start creating your own website, you must write down the structure. This will avoid many mistakes that almost all beginners have. They create a website and wing its structure. As a result, the site is constantly remade. You lose a lot of time, energy and material resources. And there is no result ...

To avoid such losses, you must first work out and write down the general structure of the site. Indicate which sections and subsections will attend. Where the subscription forms will be available. What graphic elements will be used, etc. This allows you to quickly and easily create a paper model of the real site.

Tip # 2. Think what you will fill your own site with.

It's no secret that the King of the Internet - is content. It gives you the useful information. It gathers target audience of the project. It makes the project profitable and develops it! Content - is the foundation of the site.

Before you start creating your own website, you need to think carefully about what information will be posted on it. Where it will be taken. That can be used as content. What kind of content will be posted on the website: articles, interviews, ebooks, audio files, video files, etc. This allows you to quickly fill your own site quality and unique content.

Tip # 3. Optimize graphic elements of the site.

All graphics used on this site should be optimized for the Internet. Using non-optimized graphics increases the download time on your site. As a result, the visitor cannot wait to open the page and just close it. The site owner will lose the visitor and the visitor has developed a bad impression of the site.

To the page with graphic elements quickly opened, it is necessary to optimize the graphics for the Internet. You can use the Photoshop image editor or any other specialized program designed for this purpose.

Tip # 4. Check the internal and external links.

Before you publish your own website on the Internet you should test the functionality of all internal and external links. Very often, beginners publish sites without checking the performance of links, after this you cannot access any pages of the site, download e-book, subscribe to the mailing list or free e-course.

Tip # 5. Use new technology, if it is really necessary.

Development of the Internet allows the use of new technologies on web pages. This is the use of flash-animation, sound and video.

No need to create flash-intro to half of the screen, which does not carry meaning, but serves only a part of decorating. No need to place a variety of audio and video, just for beauty. It only distracts the visitor from the information posted on the page and increases load time.

It is necessary to use new technology if it is really necessary and has a meaning.

Tip # 6. Use readable fonts.

Do not use elaborate fonts and fonts with serifs. For the most part they distract the reader from viewing the information and make a lot of effort for him to read. As a result, the voltage of the visual apparatus person simply refuses to study the site and close it.

Using direct fonts can perceive the information posted on the site without tension. In this case the reader is not focused on the analysis of characters, and the media.

Tip # 7. Use a comfortable color scheme for the site.

When designing your own website use a comfortable color. Before development, create more than one set of colors that you will use. Choose the color scheme that perfectly captures the essence of most of the project. Colors should be comfortably linked and do not cut the eye. It often happens that the background page of the site has a bright color, cutting the eye and the color - white or black, that does not agree with the overall color scheme.

Tip # 8. Create opportunities for comfortable perception of textual information.

The most common type of site content - articles. It is not an easy task to create conditions for easy and comfortable perception of this information a site visitor before the owner of the resource. These factors include the font, colors and ... Another element which has not been mentioned. Necessary between paragraphs of text information you should add an empty row, and if necessary, break the long tracts of text into several smaller ones. All this will allow better perceive of the information of the website.

Tip # 9. Before you publish your own Web site, show it to your friends.

When the site is ready, do not rush to post it on the Internet, show it to your friends. Why is this important? Working on your own website, we may not see all of its shortcomings. We all like it. Everything is convenient. But that's because we are the developer. Show your own website to your friends and ask them what they think about it. You should listen to their opinion and, if necessary, make necessary corrections. Remember: the site is created not for ourselves but for people!
